Industry Progress

by

PAUL W. BLACKFORD

The 1953 DIRECTORY AND SOURCE BOOK of the Coin Machine Industry marks another year of tremendous growth and development. Particularly outstanding have been the advances in vending. Materials shortages have curtailed the manufacture of equipment to a considerable degree but despite this stumbling block the growth and development has been constant and healthy.

At the present time it is estimated that vending machines are selling over a billion dollars worth of products per year in the United States. While this is still less than one per cent of the total retail sales, it does represent about 20 per cent of all the cigarette sales in the country, 16 per cent of the total candy bar volume. These are big chunks, and the vending industry also scored spectacular gains in sales of hot coffee and cup beverages.

In the years 1950 and 1951, vended cup beverages climbed from $59,000,000 to $81,000,000 in sales. Where there were 1,400,000 vending machines in operation in 1947, in 1951 there were 2,743,107. Some 250,000 new machines were put into operation during 1951 alone. The growth of the music branch of the Industry has been equally noteworthy with a current estimate of 400,000 automatic phonographs in operation in the nation today. Add to this the several thousand bar and counter boxes, auxiliary speakers, etc., and the aggregate total invested in automatic music reaches staggering proportions. Trend has been toward more records until present phonographs offer from 80 to 120 selections for patrons to choose from. Enlarged programs have provided a definite impetus to music sales and grosses have spiraled accordingly.

On the supply side, this new Directory lists 1249 firms that manufacture some type of coin-operated machine, or parts and accessories. This compares with a total of 1242 in the 1952 Directory, and 1109 firms in the 1951 book. Also are listed 540 firms that offer merchandise supplies to the automatic vending trade. This compares with 520 firms in last year's Directory and 480 such firms in the 1951 book.

The list of firms distributing coin-operated machines and equipment in the present Directory contains 1234 names. In 1952 this list numbered 1245.

Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-three is a year of great promise for the continued growth of the Coin Machine Industry. The harmonious factors and various associations actively engaged in building goodwill and public acceptance have accomplished tremendous results and amplified programs for 1953 indicate a continuance of these worthwhile efforts.

APPLE VENDORS
Vending of apples by machine has been taking spurts since the end of World War II. In 1950 it gained momentum with the introduction of a new refrigerated vendor designed especially for fruits. The manufacturer kept tabulations of test locations. Vending apples and other fruits proves successful at military establishments, Y.M.C.A.'s and large schools. Good locations should sell about 50 apples a day. Size of fruit can easily be varied to control price and profit margin. Organized apple growers are interested in the promotion of apple vendors; availability of supply depends on refrigerated warehouses in area. Cooled apples and fruits are a necessity in machine vending. Apple consumption has been on the decline for many years, while growers have bumper crops most years. Heavy consumer advertising by growers has stimulated a real gain in sales.

ARCADE MACHINES
The modern arcade, game room, playland, or amusement parlor is successor to the pioneer "Penny Arcade." The modern establishments use a wide variety of coin-operated machines but feature amusement devices that provide skill. The trend has been to use console cabinet types and upright cabinets. Provision must also be made for skill penny machines to cater to children. Three or four pioneer manufacturing firms in the industry have made a specialty of Arcade Machines for many years. Since almost any type of modern skill game, music machine or vending device can be used in arcades, the term is indefinite.

BEVERAGE DISPENSERS

BOTTLE-TYPE

The placing of bottle-type dispensers was stimulated in 1952 by military establishments which provided many excellent locations. Filling stations continued to be very popular locations, and Coca-Cola held it's first place in this field by a large margin. Other soft drink majors seemed to turn strongly to cup vendors in 1952. Bottle-type vendors are now almost exclusively placed by bottlers on their subsidiaries.

CUP-TYPE

Beverage machines that dispense fluids in paper cups made the most spectacular gains in the entire Automatic Vending Industry in 1952. Development and manufacture was handicapped by lack of materials, or progress would undoubtedly have been much greater. Some very important commercial interests entered the field to develop, test and promote cup types of vendors. These included Pepsi-Cola and other major producers of carbonated drinks and syrups, Welch Grape Juice Co. with ideas for dispensing grape and apple juice, Florida citrus growers and so on. Highly important also is the work of Paper Cup Institute representing manufacturers of cups which made important surveys and publicized the cup vending idea in many ways. This promotion is certain to continue for many years, assuring a complete national coverage of a wide variety of cup-type vendors as manufacturing materials permit. The variety of machines in this field is also highly impressive. Machines dispense juices, soft drinks, coffee, soups, hot chocolate, milk, etc. in paper cups. Machines for various products are also considered under separate headings. Cup machines may handle a single product or offer as many as four selections. Hot and cold drink combinations are also on the market. As food vendors for sandwiches and pastry appear on the market, cup vendors fit well into battery setups for food and drink service in in-plant feeding. Standards of sanitation for cup-type vendors have been established and sanitation laws applying to the machines are more strict than for bottle-type of machines.

COFFEE VENDORS (Hot)

Coffee Vendors are making such strides that they have become widely accepted as standard in military establishments, factories and office buildings. Their placement is now aided by companion food machines, also combinations of coffee and a cold drink. The problem of manufacturing suitable coffee base, mixing a quality beverage, etc., seems to have been practically solved. Vending pastry, cookies, doughnuts, sandwiches alongside coffee boosts coffee sales as much as one-third. A trend to smaller coffee machines has been noted and many operators say daily service is required. Individual operators with 5 to 20 machines have made good success with coffee machines, but large operating firms are also an important factor in pioneering the field. The number of manufacturing firms is showing increases, but is limited by the materials situation. In 1951, 340,000,000 cups were vended for a sales volume of $20,000,000. This compares with 208,000,000 cups and a $10,000,000 volume in 1950.

MILK VENDORS

Dispensing milk by machine has made important gains, so much so that the number of manufacturers making such vendors has increased. In 1946 the few established operators of milk vendors were saying that machines were hard to find. The trend is still toward milk in cartons, half or one-third pint. Routes that cater to homes are also doing well and sell pints or quarts in bottles. Sanitary regulations are strict and daily service is usually required by law. While dairies seem most logical operators of milk vendors, yet individual operators can also succeed in this field. Milk vendors are important for in-plant feeding setups. Stressing nutritional aspects of the product, many operators in this field have been selling locations on the merit of milk machine service, making commissions a secondary factor. Rates reach a top of 10 per cent in peak volume outlets, with the operators generally paying an average of 5 per cent or less. A large East Coast operation, using dual flavor vendors to sell 10c half-pints of milk and chocolate milk, has this schedule of commissions: Under 70 per day, 0%; 71-125, ¼c; 126-180, ½c; 181-350, ¾c; over 351, 1c.

BOWLING GAMES (Coin Operated)

Originally, the term applied to a modified form of bowling alley built to a size and form to permit coin control. Coin control has even been applied to standard size bowling alleys. But in the coin machine field the term bowling game has had an interesting history. A modified form known as Skee-Ball attained wide popularity at one time and then was followed by a type of table game that came to be known as Roll Down Games. Following in the wake of Shuffleboard since 1947 has been a new type of game built into table cabinets of eight or nine feet in length and offering many features of bowling. These games have been called Shuffle-Bowling, or Shuffle Games and the trend now being to call them Bowling Games. In 1950 this type of table game became increasingly popular and nearly all of the well-known manufacturers of amusement games have offered models of this type. The new games use a puck for play and combine some of the features of pin ball with bowling score features. Rebound play, replays, score boards and other attractions, appeal to the player. Newer games also provide for from one to six players depositing a coin for each player, and also have opened the way for dime play—an important gain in times of inflation. This type of game continued to maintain its popularity and seems likely to hold a permanent niche in the amusement games field alongside the standard pin ball or novelty games. The entire novelty games field gained indirectly when the federal government staged a wide move against gaming devices in 1951.

BULK VENDORS

The manufacture and placement of standard bulk vendors maintained a high level in 1952. Biggest impetus to bulk vendor sales during 1952 was the advent of chlorophyll gum products which hypoed sales tremendously. The number of operators in the field remains fairly stable, although operators of other types of machines have provided a good level of expansion. Price and supply of ball gum has been very favorable; price level of peanuts has continued high; vending of small confections has been aided by increase in variety. Use of nickel chutes on bulk vendors is increasing. Grouping of multiple vendors on stands continues as a trend; groceries and supermarkets have increased in importance as locations. Promotion of bulk machines for almonds and pistachios has made gains.

CANDY BAR VENDORS

Proof of the importance of candy vending is seen in the fact that a big majority of the manufacturers of candy bars now make special vending packs, more bars in a carton than in the standard 24-count carton for retail stores. The per capita consumption of candy has been downward for the last few years and total sales of candy bars has been hit by this trend. Vending machine outlets are much sought by the trade to boost sales. The big candy vending concerns, Automatic Canteen and others, have reported sales gains during the current year. Due to war inflation, much attention was given to the idea of dime candy bars in vendors. Manufacturers of bars hoped for a general transition to dime bars in order to meet higher costs. Extended tests of dime bars were made by large operating concerns, as well as smaller firms. Consumer opposition to price increases seemed to limit the move, so that nickel bars continued to dominate the vending and retail trade. 99,000 candy vendors are in national operation, representing about 15 per cent of the total number of vendors in the country. Government reports show only 28 per cent of retail establishments sell candy. It is claimed vendors sell 4.8 per cent of the total candy volume. This figure would be much higher if only bar volume was considered. 16 per cent is an estimated figure. Per capita candy expenditure in 1951 reached $10.72 and 1952 sales indicated a higher figure.

CIGAR VENDORS

The tobacco trade has indicated a general decline in cigar smoking in recent years. But sale of the popular priced cigars has shown increases in the face of general decline, and cigar vending in the last two years has also made good increases. It may appeal to operators of cigarette routes but many operators specialize in cigar vendors. Routemen may service 35 to 45 machines per day and weekly servicing is the rule on many routes; routes often consist of about 100 machines for a one-man operation. One operator estimates cigar costs at 6 to 7 cents each, selling at a dime, commission amounting to about ½ cent per cigar, sales running about 35 to 45 cigars per machine weekly. In choice locations machines may run to 1,000 sales per month. Some estimate 15,000 to 18,000 cigar vendors in use, with the big majority being one-brand machines. The trend, however, is to selective machines. For the first seven months of 1952 gain in cigar sales reached 6 per cent, and it is estimated that 20 per cent of the male population are now smoking cigars. Milwaukee was highest area, southern California lowest. Local preferences vary considerably on brands.

CIGARETTE VENDORS

The advent of the king size Chesterfield highlighted activities in Cigarette vending circles during 1952. Sales of standard cigarettes gained about 4 per cent for the first seven months of the year compared to 1951 while the sale of king size ran 108 per cent above 1951 for the same period. Expectations in all branches of the trade suggest that the king size will continue to make a larger percentage of the total volume. 41 states now tax cigs and in latest reports it is indicated they will collect on 11 packs per capita for 1952 compared with 9.83 per capita in 1951. 80 per cent of volume of cig sales is now covered by double taxation. DEPRECIATION: National average is now 7 years, straight line depreciation. In other words, the total cost of the vendor is divided by 84 and 1/84th written off as depreciation each month.

COIN CHANGERS

Perhaps the greatest invention to aid the Coin Machine Industry in many years. Modern vending machines may have changer units built in, or changers may be placed alongside the vending machines. Coin changers are said to increase patronage of vending machines by about 30 per cent. Coin changers are on the market which can be operated as a business in itself. Amusement and music machines tend to use multiple coin chutes rather than changers.

COIN CHUTES

The trend in coin mechanisms in recent years has been to single entry chutes that accept nickels, dimes and quarters. Coin mechanisms are the foundation device of the Coin Machine Industry and have reached a high state of perfection. Cigarette price changes since 1949 spurred activity among manufacturers of mechanisms to supply the demand for new mechanisms for cigarette machines.

A new federal law, in 1951, served to decrease the use of spurious coins and slugs, since the new law enabled the Secret Service to enter any situation on its own initiative where use of slugs was reported. During the history of the Coin Machine Industry, the battle against slugs had challenged the ingenuity of the makers of coin mechanisms in many ways.

COOKIE VENDORS

Due to the fact that cookies or biscuits are widely vended in candy bar machines, and more recently in food vendors, the cookie vending machine as such has become static. Cookie vendors are most frequently placed in connection with other machines, such as vend coffee, soups, soft drinks, etc.

Several manufacturers of cookies cater especially to the vending machine trade. The expansion in coffee vending is proving a great aid to vending of cookies. The vending machine trade has tended officially to use the term Biscuits rather than Cookies.

COUNTER GAMES

The new federal tax of $250 per year, and the Johnson Act that bans interstate shipment of gaming devices has seriously interfered with what were for many years very numerous and were popularly known in the Industry as "counter games." Most of them had a gaming play motif, and operated on a penny. There are some small skill games made in counter cabinet size that are not covered by the federal law.

FOOD VENDORS
(See also Multiple Vendors)

A classification known as Food Vendors gained momentum in 1952. It was partly an attainment of a long dream in the industry whereby foods would be vended by machine in plants and office buildings. The new industrial boom and also the widespread use of beverage vendors of various types aided the growth of Food Vendors. They may also be classed as sandwich vendors. In the new expansion of such machines, they are being used to vend cold and hot sandwiches wrapped in cellophane, pastries, doughnuts, cookies and other small packaged items. In some cases the machines used to vend these items have been adapted by manufacturers from cigarette and candy bar machines. But the real developments in food vendors are refrigerated machines and radar units that offer full sanitary protection. It is this type of machine that is expected to make great headway when manufacturing materials are more plentiful. They have great possibilities for in-plant feeding and as a complement to all types of beverage vendors.

GUM VENDORS

BALL

Supplies of ball gum have continued ample and price trends have been more favorable than other types of bulk merchandise. Chief developments in 1951 involved the use of charms as premiums in the vendors. A test case in Virginia was pushed under the federal Pure Food Law, and an appeals court decided that charms are not an adulteration when placed with gum, confections, etc., in vendors. The use of charms has been a great adjunct to the vending of ball gum. Trade reports show that ball gum vending made real gains in 1952.

STICK

Vending of stick gum, in 5-cent packages or at one cent per single stick was stimulated in 1950 and 1951 by the development of improved vendors for handling such items. Many candy bar operators also insert nickel packs of stick gum in candy machines for variety. National sales of stick gum hold at a high level and the idea for the vending operator is to place gum at the most convenient places for the customer. Profit margins for operators were more favorable in 1952 than on candy bars.

HOT FOOD VENDORS

This type of vendor is still in the development stage, when applied to vending hot sandwiches. Some real developments are under way and the use of electronic or infra red heat seems to make such vending possible. A substantial operation of radar equipped hot food vendors was launched in the New York area in the fall of 1952 and received a very profitable acceptance. Machines for dispensing hot soups, hot chocolate, etc., are considered under Beverage Vendors.

ICE CREAM VENDORS

In the second postwar year in which consumption of ice cream has shown gains, ice cream vendors also made constructive gains—more machines manufactured and also more placed. Latest reports show sales gained during the summer of 1952 at a rapid pace and was about 12 per cent over 1951. 12,000 ice cream vendors are estimated to be on location which shows that this is a relatively untapped phase of automatic merchandising. Military camps have aided ice cream vendor expansion; the trend is still toward ice cream bars. A sample operation in an army camp uses two refrigerated trucks, 50 vendors and three servicemen.

NUT VENDORS

These machines belong in the bulk vendor class and have been widely operated since the pioneer days of coin controlled devices. Vendors for peanuts are by far the most common and have enabled many a beginner to build up a good business. Excellent machines for vending peanuts, nut mixes, almonds, pistachios, etc., are available. The market price of nuts has been high in recent years and to some extent has handicapped this field of vending. Nut vendors can be regulated so that quantity dispensed is in keeping with market prices of merchandise. Candy operators often use penny nut vendors for bigger returns from route. From 60 to 80 machines per day may be serviced in one day on good routes and 200 machines make a recommended basic route for one-man operation. Pioneer operators still call industrial locations the best for nut vendors. Machines should produce an average of 75 to 150 sales per week.

PHONOGRAPHS

The automatic phonograph industry, in 1952, was marked by a real revival in the introduction of new model phonographs, and by a sudden halt to the movement toward dime play because of price controls. New models definitely provided for more records and also for easy conversion to 45 r.p.m. speed records. Models were also available for direct use of the 45 r.p.m. speed; small counter model phonographs were also available. The California Music Guild had qualified under the state fair trade laws in 1950 and thus started a widespread movement to qualify under state fair trade. Coincident with this movement was the movement also to increase the price per play to a dime. Dime play became a widespread objective among operators in the first half of 1951, although many operators held that the public would not pay more than five cents per record. Some machines were changed to offer a minimum play of ten cents, giving two records in return. By the summer of 1951, the Office of Price Stabilization had shown opposition to boosting the price to a dime for single play. The organized groups of music operators thereupon petitioned OPS for permission to increase to dime play. The trade reported that operating costs increased steadily as the Korean War caused a new inflation. OPS filed suits against operators changing to dime play and attorneys for the Music Operators of America hope to make a test case, break the OPS ruling, and make dime play possible on a national basis.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS

The newer types of phonographs, offering more selections to the public, increased the use of records by the automatic phonograph trade in 1952. The trade also began to use more 45 r.p.m. records as new models of phonographs spread. Record sales during 1952 indicated that the automatic phonograph trade would remain the most stable user of 78 r.p.m. shellac records. When Congress was in session early in the year, the automatic phonograph trade was disturbed by proposed legislation to change the federal Copyright Act of 1909 so that a fee could be collected for the use of copyright music on the machines. Current reports indicate that this threat may be very serious again when Congress convenes in 1953. Total sales of records increased in 1952 and many popular tunes were

PINBALL GAMES

This classification is generally applied to novelty games offering 5 balls for play, and in nearly all games, there is a replay or free play feature. The widespread popularity of the newer Bowling or Shuffle-Bowling games in 1950 and 1951 served to divert the trade from the 5-ball games proper. But the rate of new model 5-ball games is increasing again. Pin ball is still the term used by newspapers to refer to the varied types of amusement games, including the newer puck-using table games. No specific trends in pin ball were in evidence during 1952. Manufacturers strove chiefly to add to the replay and award features of their games. Premiums increased in use in some areas but the premium trend still had not become national.

POPCORN VENDORS

The non-coin type of dispenser continued to predominate, as shown by the popcorn trade itself. Trade surveys suggested that the coin-operated type of machine declined numerically in the vending machine trade. The National Assn. of Popcorn Manufacturers discussed vending machines as a definite type of merchandising at its 1951 convention, but the tendency among processors was to consider the non-coin warmers also as vendors.

POSTAGE STAMP VENDORS

Routes of postage stamp vendors are a specialized operation, the U. S. Post Office Department having dignified the business by using specially built machines in some cities. Machines that vend from rolls of 500 to 1,000 stamps, or machines that dispense stamps in folders are standard. If stamps are dispensed in folders, inserting the stamps in standard folders is part of the operation. Rolls of stamps may be purchased from the postal system. Stamp vendors are considered a real service to the public; two or more vendors are often placed in such locations as drug stores.

PREMIUMS

The use of premium merchandise by at least two groups in the coin machine trade has had a good revival since 1949. Cigarette machine operators have found in many cases that premium coupons stimulate sales, and there are premium firms that offer services to operators that make the idea practical. The promotion of Raleigh brand cigarettes has set a pace for the use of premiums in cigarette merchandising. Operators of amusement games, including the new type bowling games, have found that premium merchandise also greatly stimulates business. The use of merchandise awards with pin ball games reached a big stage before 1940, and then met opposition in some important states. In recent years big business firms have revived the use of premiums and coupons to sell goods and the idea has become very popular. Tests show that small operators of many types of machines can use coupons and premium merchandise to good advantage also.

SANDWICH VENDORS

(See Food Vendors)

The classification of Sandwich Vendors is yielding to the newer term of Food Vendors in the Industry, since machines built to dispense sandwiches may often be used to dispense pies, packaged cookies and other food items. Prepackaged sandwiches are used and radar and refrigerated vendors are increasing because of the need for meeting sanitary requirements. Sandwich vendors are useful in conjunction with beverage vendors of various types.

SCALES

The penny weighing machines are still popular, after adverse publicity here and there for many years. Production of new scales increased since 1945 and attention is being given to ideas for attracting customers. Scales combined with gum and stamp vendors, coin changers, sponsored scales, are more recent ideas added to guessing, fortune and ticket scales.

TITLE STRIPS
Manufacturers of phonographs have contributed much to encouraging the use of attractive panel strips by the arrangement of title panels on automatic phonographs. Suppliers of title strips also contribute ideas in merchandising music. Organizations of music operators seek to promote the use of better title strips as a form of public relations. Considerable agitation developed midyear as to the use of colored strips to accentuate coming tunes. However, for the sake of neatness and in the best interests of music operating, the majority opinion is for white strips only.

COIN MACHINE REVIEW
1115 Venice Blvd. Los Angeles 15, Calif.

As Man to Man—

- - these have been difficult years in the Coin Machine Industry. Strict cooperation with the Defense Program has resulted in curtailed coin machine production and with such curtailments the problems of equitable distribution, maintaining distributing organizations, not over-exploiting limited production, etc.

Throughout these trying times it has been a struggle for survival for many components of the Industry, but on the dawn of a new tomorrow many of these problems will take wing and a semblance of "as usual" will again return.

THE COIN MACHINE REVIEW

has weathered these troubled times — and grown stronger and more energetic in so doing. Our dedication of purpose is firmer than in any of our 21 years of publishing and the way in which our paid subscription list has maintained itself is a tribute to warm the cockles of any publisher's heart.

Today THE REVIEW offers the only monthly PAID circulation in the Coin Machine Industry, and PAID circulation is QUALITY circulation for a man paying for an item is pretty blamed sure to use or read it.

We invite you to meet and do business with this PAID group of Blue Bloods. You'll find a welcome through the advertising columns of THE REVIEW and form many worthwhile business connections that will pay handsome dividends in the years ahead.

Advertising deadline is the 18th of each month with the issue dated one month ahead to give your advertising 6 weeks of life.

VENDORS IN PLANTS

Due to the advances being made in the use of automatic vendors for in-plant feeding, or auxiliary thereto, the following information reported in a survey made by the Field Research Division of the Paper Cup and Container Institute is valuable for reference purposes:

Operators of vending machines to dispense candy bars, soft drinks, ice cream, coffee, soups, milk, sandwiches, juices, cookies and other items in the food class compete to some extent with other types of in-plant feeding services, the survey indicated. But the trend is to regard vendors as a supplementary service or to use vendors altogether. In-plant food services may include a cafeteria, canteen, mobile cart, etc.

The survey revealed that automatic vendors may profitably supplement all of the in-plant feeding services and hence will be one of the best sales talks for vendors that an operator can get to show to plant managements.

The complete 19-page report can be had by writing to the research firm at 49 West 46th St., New York 19, N. Y. The Institute prepared a digest of its complete report which is a decided sales talk for vendors, as follows:

A study of in-plant feeding systems in locations where fewer than 1000 persons are employed has been completed by the Field Research Division of the Paper Cup and Container Institute and reports of results are now available. The study indicates that, in general, full scale cafeterias are the most expensive way to serve food in such locations, and that supplementary services, including vending machines, will probably do an increasing part of small plant feeding.

The Field Research Division is set up by the Paper Cup and Container Institute to furnish facts and figures that might be of help to customers of the cup manufacturing companies that comprise the Institute's membership. In addition to the technical aid which individual cup companies have given to develop equipment for vending, the Research Division is now spending an increasing part of its time in gathering material on that field, directors say.

1. The survey was initiated to find out how small plants are providing food for fewer workers than it takes to support the type of in-plant food service now customary in large plants. Field reporters visited 26 in-plant food services in representative factories employing fewer than 1000 workers. Plants were located in ten states and engaged in a broad range of manufacturing enterprises.

2. Vending machines were the most popular source of supplementary food reported. Most of the factories had more than one food system. The group included 17 cafeterias, nine mobile cart systems, and four canteens. In 12 factories, vending machines were used to supply candy, cookies, peanuts and soft drinks. Several reported experimentation with vending machines selling wrapped sandwiches, but no vending machines of this type were in operation at the time of the survey. High cost, and difficulty of getting fresh sandwiches were reasons given for the discontinuance of the service, but many plant managers expressed interest in future development of vending machines serving substantial hot food items, particularly coffee.

3. Vending machines were the only source of food which consistently ran in the black. One New England textile firm employing a thousand feeds its workers at noon through a mobile cart system which circulates hot food in paper containers prepared by the caterer at his own commissary. Employees like the service, which provides a moderate profit to the concessionaire. In addition, vending machines selling soft drinks earn $200 a month for the employees' association.

Supplementary food services, such as canteens, mobile carts, and vending machines were more popular with employees and almost all of them paid their own way in contrast to the traditional deficits in small plant cafeterias. Profits on snack services were frequently applied to the cafeteria, or to employee welfare purposes.

4. Factory managers in many cases insist on cup vending machines for soft drinks to reduce accidents from broken or rolling bottles. The Armstrong Cork Co. does not permit breakable utensils on the factory floor. The company says this safety measure also protects valuable stock.

5. Competition between vending machines and other food services in the plant was not regarded as a serious problem. One company thought the candy and pop machines competed with sale of candy and pop in the cafeteria. In other plants, competition was avoided by not serving vended goods in the cafeterias, but most felt that the competition was unimportant because the machines were selling at hours when the cafeteria was closed. A Cleveland foundry, for instance, liked the vending machines because they made it unnecessary to keep the cafeteria open beyond the lunch hour for snackers.

Value of Cigarette Routes

The National Assn. of Tobacco Distributors conducts a clinic discussion on cigarette vending machines at its annual conventions, since it is sometimes estimated that as many as 50 per cent of the tobacco distributors of the nation also operate cigarette vendors directly or indirectly.

At the convention an official question suggested that the approximate cost of soliciting and placing a machine on a new location may be estimated at $50 and there seemed to be general agreement that this estimate was approximate.

It was also suggested that in buying a route the purchaser could estimate the value of the route on the basis of $1,000 for each case of cigarettes sold weekly. This value would be for an established route in full operation. But opinion among operators differed on this valuation standard. They said territory would have much to do with the value—that it would not be enough for routes in cities like New York and that it would be too high for routes in smaller areas.

Other operators suggested that a route should be worth two to two and a half times its monthly volume. An operator should be able to make a net of 10 per cent before taxes and depreciation and thus pay off the purchase price in two years.

Two experienced operators of cigar machines also expressed their views on minimum sales per machine. One said that 50 sales per week per machine was profitable. Another said a location that sells 100 cigars per month, at 3½ cents margin per cigar, is profitable.

Tax Rate For Vendors

The automatic vending industry has consistently opposed the trend of states and cities to place a tax on each separate vending machine as unfair. The trade has suggested that a tax, if any, should be applied to the operator as a business license as any other retail or wholesale business would be licensed.

The National Automatic Merchandising Assn. has suggested the following percentage scale of taxation on the average monthly gross receipts as a basis for such business tax:

Less than $500 gross—rate of $1.50 per quarter; $500 to $1,000 volume—$3 tax; $1,000 to $2,000 volume—$5 tax; $2,000 to $5,000 volume—$7.50 tax. The schedule thus advances so that a tax rate of $25 would apply to a monthly volume of $20,000 to $25,000.
